The President's Message: Cemeteries, Existentialism, and the Legacy of the BABC

The sun shone bright in a clear azure sky on what felt like the first true day of Spring. The warmth of the sun's rays teased a promise of fair weather to come, as yellow jonquils and purple crocus dotted the landscape. The earliest flowering trees, reliable harbingers of spring each year, seemed to have burst into bloom almost overnight. On this marvelous early Spring day, a band of lawyers gathered for the Bar Association's tour of Baltimore's famous Green Mount Cemetery, with a focus on influential women of the 19th and early 20th centuries.

Kelly Hughes
Iverson

Our delightful tour guide, Wayne Schumberg, regaled us with tales of lives gone by – their triumphs, their tragedies, and for many, their fierce determination to leave this world a better place than they found it. Among those buried there are names we know well in Baltimore today: Garrett, Patterson, Hopkins, Bonaparte, and Poe (not Edgar Allan; he lies in Westminster by the University of Maryland School of Law), to name only a few. They were leaders in law, government, science, education, medicine, charity and philanthropy, and the arts. We are fortunate to know about them and to remember them.

The wealthy and famous Baltimoreans of the 19th and early 20th centuries – each fascinating in their own right – were able to create legacies that loomed large for future generations. Some linger more in infamy than in fame: the unmarked grave of John Wilkes Booth, for example, is visited by many who leave pennies on the grave and in the crevices of the Booth family monument. Each penny is placed such that Lincoln's head is facing up, as a symbol of ultimate triumph.

But looking around the very crowded cemetery, it soon was apparent that the wealthy and famous Baltimoreans we'd come to learn about were but a tiny fraction of the more than 67,000 souls resting under the sloping green hills of Green Mount Cemetery. Each individual grave marks a unique life story, each with its own legacy. Subsequent generations may not have the same degree of collective knowledge about those who were less wealthy and less famous, but most assuredly, each individual had an impact, of some degree and for better or worse, on other lives of the day. For some who are not as well-known, later generations may never have the opportunity to appreciate their impact. These legacies are no less meaningful merely by virtue of being untold.

In the cemetery surrounded by memorials to more than 67,000 lives, it is probably no coincidence that my thoughts turned more existential as my year as Bar President draws nearer to its close. We are here to try to do some good, to connect with those around us, to get up again when we stumble, and to endeavor that our impact on the lives of others will be more often 'for better' and less often 'for worse.' I have been privileged and honored over the course of this year to be entrusted with the stewardship of this vibrant and energetic organization and to work with dedicated and talented colleagues. The Bar Association of Baltimore City is, in my humble opinion, outstanding among bar associations for its diversity, camaraderie, professionalism, educational opportunities, and welcoming nature. In an era when many bar associations are losing members, the Bar Association of Baltimore City remains steady and continues to add members, as the professional and personal benefits of membership in this dynamic organization become ever more apparent. (Shameless promotional sidebar: There is an opportunity to join at any point throughout the year, and any reader who has not yet joined should do so now). The Association exists for its members, supporting and helping lawyers and judges to do our jobs better in ways large and small. Much of the Association's work is well known and well publicized. Other work is accomplished out of the public eye, but it is no less meaningful by virtue of being untold. If the Association provides a platform for even one experienced attorney to mentor a new attorney, or provides a network for referral of cases that matches just one client with the right lawyer, or provides substantive education that even one lawyer uses to better serve a client, or provides an opportunity for social interaction between opposing counsel (and I submit it continues to do all these things and more, many times over), then the Association will have had a lasting and significant impact on our community and on our clients. This is the living legacy of the Bar Association of Baltimore City.

Young Lawyers' Division Update Springing Forward in Full Swing

The YLD kicked off last month with a networking reception at University of Maryland Francis King Carey School of Law. Several BABC members, UM Law alumni, and students attended the free reception on March 7th. Dean Tobin gave a warm welcome to the Young Lawyers Division and all the UM alumni turned BABC members. This is the YLD's third year partnering with UM Law School and every year the event has gained more popularity. On March 23 the YLD Public Service Committee organized volunteers to help out at the Maryland SPCA. Volunteers cleaned cages, prepared treats, organized donations, and played with the furry residents of the shelter. The SPCA staff was extremely appreciative for the assistance and complimented the YLD on their endeavors during this short and sweet volunteer opportunity.

On March 27, the CLE and Membership Committees organized an educational happy hour at The QG where Certified Financial Planners from Morgan Stanley provided insight into various fiscal issues facing young professionals. The CFPs discussed topics such as managing student loan debt, evaluating employer benefits packages such as 401Ks, starting retirement accounts, starting a business, and consolidating incomes for newly married couples. The evening was sponsored by the Orchard Wealth Management Group at Morgan Stanley and Diva Law, LLC.

We encourage folks to come out to the Harambe Center Clothing Drive and Fashion Show on Wednesday, April 10, from 4:45 p.m. – 6:00 p.m., at 1622 N. Carey Street, Baltimore, MD 21217. The YLD Public Service Committee is collecting gently used professional attire to donate to Dress for Success, Sharp Dressed Man, and the youth of the Harambe Center. The Fashion Show will feature models who will dress as they would for work (business/business casual) and explain their office environment and why they dress the way they do.

Senior Legal Services will host its Annual Law Day for Seniors on Saturday, April 13, at New Psalmist Baptist Church, 6020 Marian Drive, Baltimore, MD 21215. This will be the 28th year for this event which helps educate low income seniors regarding numerous legal issues such as grandparents rights, guardianship, estate administration, and avoiding financial scams targeting seniors. The YLD Public Service Committee is seeking volunteers to help with set-up, event logistics, and clean-up.

On April 16, the YLD Membership Committee is co-hosting a free networking happy hour with University of Baltimore School of Law and Randstad USA at Joe Squared, 33 W. North Avenue, Baltimore, MD 21201. All are invited to attend the event which will go from 5:30 p.m. to 7:30 p.m. and will involve solid and liquid refreshments as always. This month's Breakfast with the Bench will feature Magistrate Hope Tipton who will discuss 'Best Practices When Appearing Before a Family Division Magistrate.' This CLE Committee event will be held on April 23 at 8:00 a.m., at the law office of Whiteford, Taylor & Preston. Coffee and breakfast will be served.

The weekend of April 27-28 has been deemed 'Maryland Lawyers Day of Service' by the incredibly active Executive Directors of the local and specialty bars of our state. This year's theme is homelessness. Dozens of local and specialty bars have organized volunteer events at various times during this weekend. The BABC and YLD Public Service Committee will be serving lunch at Our Daily Bread on April 28th. Volunteers are needed to prepare casseroles.

Finally, our YLD Awards Committee is soliciting nominations for three awards until COB today, which will be presented at the 4th Annual Spring Social and Awards Reception. The awards will recognize three young lawyers who have shown leadership promise and commitment to furthering the YLD's goals. The awards are: 'Rising Star Award,' 'Public Service Award,' and 'Sustained Leadership Award.' Mark your calendars for the 4th Annual Spring Social & Awards Reception, which will be held at the Lord Baltimore Skybar on May 15, 2019. The Honorable Dana Middleton, Circuit Court for Baltimore City, will be presenting the awards.

Mindfulness as a Foundation for Ethical Lawyering

Wednesday, May 8, 2019
Goodell, Devries, Leech & Dann, LLP
1 South Street, 20th Floor
Baltimore, MD 21202
12:30 p.m. – 2:00 p.m.

Guest Speaker
Jennifer Dill, Esq. | Ferrante, Dill, & Hisle, LLC

Mindfulness is defined as the practice of maintaining a nonjudgmental state of heightened or complete awareness of one's thoughts, emotions, or experiences on a moment-to-moment basis. Join the BABC's Health and Wellness Committee to learn from Jennifer Dill, Esq., Managing Partner at Ferrante, Dill & Hisle, LLC and a 2018 Graduate of Mindfulness in the Law Teacher Training, Warrior One, how to train your mind to be more present and resilient to the difficulties that can be presented in any given moment.

Lawyers who practice mindfulness develop skills and a mindset that can help them be more effective lawyers, and perhaps even more importantly, help them improve not only their own well-being, but that of their clients, their colleagues, and the profession as a whole.

Lunch generously sponsored by Magistrate James P. Casey
The Honorable Edward J. Hargadon
